FIFTH VICTORY LOAN NOTES

The Pledge Flag for the Blairmore-Frank unit will be raised at the band stand on main street at 2 p.m. on Sunday, October 17th, 1943. The Macleod Air Force band, together with the Turtle Mountain Squadron of Air Cadets, will parade and the proficiency trophy will be presented to the Air Cadets by an Air Force officer.

Quotas for Fifth Victory Loan show the Blairmore-Frank unit with a quota of $91,000, and every citizen of the unit will have to dig deep to fill the quota. For the four past Victory Loans, the Blairmore-Frank unit has made a very creditable showing, passing the quota on each occasion, by a special effort will be made to keep up the good record.

They turned down A. C. Murray at the recruiting centre in Calgary. He wrote from Michel, volunteering his services and making an apology for his rheumatism which forces him to use a cane. Officials replied with a regretful "No." They thought 74 was too old.

SOLDIER BOOKS REVIEWED

A request has been made by the local Victory Loan committee for pictures of boys or girls who are in the armed forces or who have been in the armed forces, to be placed in the local store window to be looked at by their display.

We understand the response to the appeal has been fairly satisfactory, but there are still some to come.

This will help the Fifth Loan campaign considerably, and it is hoped that none will be overlooked.

The following books are being added to the Blairmore Public Library: "Journey Among Warriors," by Eva Currie; "Combined Operations," official story of the Commandos; "Glass Mountain," by M. F. Dover; "Dawn Over the Amazon," by Bials; "Hungry Hill," by du Maurier; "Private Report," by K. Roberts; "Man Next Door," by Eberhart; "Seed Beneath the Snow," by Silone; "Forest and Fort," by Harvey Allen; "Malta Spitfire," by Flying Officer Baurling; and "Six lives in a book," by Houghton.

FIFTH VICTORY LOAN

"President Roosevelt recently described as Sixth Columnists those who, quite unwittingly and probably unthinkingly, make remarks likely to give comfort to the enemy. In that class I would put those (and there are thousands of them) who are spreading their opinions that the War will be over in a matter of months," said Fred E. Osborne, chairman of the National War Finance Committee for Alberta, in an interview. "The spread of such a feeling can only result in a let-up in supporting our country's war effort on the part of thousands on the home front," continued Mr. Osborne. "Let us face the facts. The Axis junior partner, Italy, surrendered it is true, but we haven't Italy as yet and it may be months before our chief enemy is forced out of that unhappy country and then only at a terrific cost in personnel and equipment. Italy was never considered, a second front, by Churchill, Roosevelt or Stalin, but only as a preliminary to a second front. In the Pacific, we are still island-hopping—in the right direction it is true, but still island-hopping. Not one United Nations' leader in any theatre of war has ever even hinted at an early cessation of hostilities. Not one cabinet minister in the navy, army and air force departments of our allies has ever suggested such a possibility. Let's be realistic about this whole matter—this is no time for wishful thinking."

Mr. Osborne felt obliged to give this warning because of the possible adverse of such amateurish thought upon the success of the Fifth Victory Loan campaign which opens next Monday. "Our sons and daughters, our neighbors' sons and daughters in far-flung war areas will be the ones who will suffer if Canadians at home don't 'Back The Attack' with more and more bullets," continued Mr. Osborne. "When we get into the jam of besieging the fortress of Europe or beating the Jap in his own cities and towns, we will need more and more personnel and equipment if we are to maintain our present momentum, let alone increase the tempo of our efforts."

Asked as to Alberta's objective in this campaign, Mr. Osborne stated that the National Finance Committee at Ottawa had set it at a minimum of $37,000,000, which means that we have to equal the results obtained last May in the Fourth Victory Loan campaign in the payroll and general sales divisions. "This is a large sum to duplicate in six months, but Alberta is in a particularly fortunate position this fall. A substantial increase in the initial payment on wheat deliveries, increased prices for oats, barley and flax, increased subsidies to dairy farmers since the last loan, increased marketings of hogs, cattle, poultry, etc., increased employment in cities, towns and villages, more members of families in gainful occupation, all mean greater net cash income in almost every family. But we must put out of our thoughts any idea we might have had about an easy or an easy victory. Let's plan and work as though we were only now getting down to the real business of winning this war—if happily we get results, presently unexpected, your government will need a lot of money before our boys and girls are again mingling with us in their accustomed haunts. The record which Albertans have hung up in four previous Victory Loan campaigns causes me to believe that they will do it again, through more subscribers and a larger total of subscriptions," concluded Mr. Osborne.

The Krupp munitions works at Essen, the greatest armament combine in Europe and the main source of Germany's heavy armament, has been shelled by air attack, according to its well organized raids.

An Empire Council

AS FAMILY TIES ARE FREQUENTLY strengthened in times of distress, so have the bonds which unite the various parts of the British Empire become stronger during the present war. There is no doubt but that the Axis nations were convinced that the Empire would not remain united under the trying circumstances of modern warfare, but contrary to their expectations, even the remotest British possessions have rallied to the fullest support of Great Britain at this time, and there have been magnificent contributions in manpower, supplies and money, from every part of the Empire. Apart from the tangible benefits which have resulted from this demonstration of Empire unity, there has also been cause for great satisfaction for all those who hope to see the British Commonwealth of Nations work as a body in co-operation with the other democratic countries in the post-war world, in furthering wide application of the principles for which we are now fighting.

Would Permit Quick Action

Prime Minister John Curtin, of Australia, whose government was recently returned to power with a decisive majority, has made the timely suggestion, that after the war some sort of Empire machinery should be set up, which will permit quick joint action in matters of urgency. He has emphasized that such an Empire Council would not have executive powers, but would operate on "effective consultant lines." Premier Curtin also made it very clear that this plan would in no way involve the creation of an Empire bloc against the rest of the world, but would be instrumental in permitting a strongly united British Empire to work in close co-operation with the other democratic nations in the postwar years. The British Empire has for many years stood as a living example of what can be achieved through the practical use of democratic principles, and it will no doubt play a very important part in ensuring the application of these principles to the re-building of the liberated nations in the future.

Interest Has Been Aroused

This proposal has aroused interest in all parts of the Empire and has put into concrete form the hopes of many other British Empire statesmen who have looked forward to some specific plan for consolidating the Commonwealth. It is recognized that many complex situations will arise after the war, and a council such as Mr. Curtin has suggested would bring the people of the Empire into closer co-operation in the formation of important post-war policies. Canada, in common with Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the Empire, has expanded and extended her sphere of influence greatly during the past four years, and after the war our concern with world politics will be greater than it has previously been. Mr. Churchill has on several occasions intimated his interest in bringing the various parts of the Empire into closer association, and there are few people here, or elsewhere within the Commonwealth, who do not desire to see the strengthening of the ties which have bound it together and given it the unique place which it now holds in the history of the world.

TOMATOES DAILY!

As this is the time of the year when tomatoes are inexpensive and plentiful you should be using them daily to provide your family's supply of vitamin C. To obtain the maximum benefit from the vitamin C in tomatoes they must be handled with care. Do not leave them exposed to air for any length of time after they have been cut. When cooking tomatoes do not over-cook and serve immediately they are finished cooking.

Because of the great loss of vitamin C during cooking we should use tomatoes raw as much as possible. There are several methods of preparation besides the conventional method of slicing raw tomatoes. As an appetizer you may serve fresh tomato cocktail made by serving fully ripe fruit and adding the desired flavoring.

If the tomatoes are to be used in the main course, you will find either stuffed raw tomatoes or stuffed baked tomatoes both different and delicious. Using firm medium size tomatoes scoop out part of the pulp and replace with a combination of shredded cabbage, carrot, and raw beef mixed with salad dressing. Or you could fill the tomato with cottage cheese, chopped cooked meat and celery or potato salad.

Stuffed baked tomatoes provide you with a great variety of dishes depending on your choice of stuffings.

STUFFED TOMATOES

1 cup diced Bologna
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. bread crumbs
Combine these and add to 6 large tomatoes after you have removed the pulp. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees F. for 15-20 minutes.

In addition to this recipe the tomatoes may be filled with bread or potato dressing; the conventional method of slicing raw tomatoes, or a stuffing composed of minced vegetables and left over meats.

If you wish to feature the tomato in a supper dish, break an egg into the hollow of the tomato and bake 20 minutes at 250 degrees F. You will find this not only delicious but nourishing.

Churchill's Opinion

British Prime Minister Tells Foreign Secretary Something About Ago Before the Quebec Conference. Anthony Eden read the descriptions of himself which appeared in the American press. In those dispatches there were references to his graying hair. "At last," said Eden, "they no longer will say about me, 'the youthful diplomat'."

"You're wrong," Winston Churchill corrected him. "Remember MacDonald, Baldwin, Chamberlain and me. In British politics now, youth begins at 50 and middle age at 70." —New York Post.

Retain Control

Large Measure Of Governmental Control In Britain After The War Ends

A large measure of governmental control over British social and economic life will have to be retained for a time after the war ends if a national catastrophe is to be avoided, according to Home Secretary Herbert Morrison.

Morrison warned business men in a speech that Britain will undergo another period of boom and bust, similar to that which followed the last war, if existing wartime controls are lifted too soon.

I GOT RID OF MY CONSTIPATION WITHOUT "DOSING"!

When we're all doing our best to help with the war none of us can afford to be slowed up physically and mentally by common constipation. . . . the kind caused by lack of vitamin K in the diet. If you're troubled that way, why not get right at the cause instead of "dosing" with purgatives that give, at best, only temporary relief. Here's a simple, "better way" to prevent constipation caused by lack of "bulk"—eat KELL-OID ALL DAY every day . . . grand-tasting as a cereal or in crispy muffins . . . drink it down with a glass of water. You'll notice a big difference in the way you feel and look! Get started right now on a convenient slice. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Roll your owners! Go for Ogden's

In the early days, "Tin Lizzy" did not always roll smoothly, but old-timers will tell you that Ogden's has always been a smooth tobacco. Why? Because it's a distinctive blend of choice, ripe tobacco—worthy of its famous name—Ogden's. You try it—and today, Ogden's quality for pipe smokers, too, in Ogden's Cut Plug.

SMILE AWHILE

Johnny Brown had missed school. The next day he brought this excuse from his father:

Dear Teacher: Please excuse John's absence from school yesterday. He fell in the river and got all wet. By doing the same you will oblige.

A policeman, whose evidence was taken on commission, deposed: "The prisoner called me an ass, a precious dolt, a scarecrow, a ragamuffin and an idiot." And this being the conclusion of his deposition, his signature was preceded by the formal ending, "All of which I swear is true."

Freeman—Did you hear about old absent-minded Professor Freezer?

Senior—Why, no. Freeman—He looked in the directory to find out where he lived and found he couldn't remember his name.

Mistress—Marie, you were entertaining a man in the kitchen last night, weren't you?

Marie—That's for him to say, man. But I tried my best.

"These gloves are about six sizes too small for me." "Well, you asked for kid gloves, didn't you?"

"And did you ever lose yourself in your work?"

"Yes." "What is your work?"

"Exploring Central Africa."

"I'd like a couple of hard-boiled eggs to take out," said the young fellow to the girl at the lunch counter.

"Right," replied the waitress with a smile, "but you'll have to wait. Me and Mamie don't get off until ten."

Customer—I'd look at a man's comb.

Salesgirl—Certainly. You wish a narrow man's comb?

Customer—No, I want a comb for a fat man with rubber teeth.

"And what did you learn in Scripture lesson, dear?" asked mother.

"Oh, all about the Ten Commandments," replied Tommy.

The teacher was explaining to her class what was meant by "bigamy."

"It means," she said, "having two wives at one time. Now, can any boy tell me what word means having only one wife?"

"I can, teacher," said one boy; "monotony."

Chaplain—How could you have the heart to swindle people who trusted you?

Prisoner—But, parson, people who don't trust you can't be swindled.

The doctor was discovered with easel and brushes.

"Why doctor, I never knew you painted!" exclaimed his friend.

"Oh, I just do it to kill time," replied the doctor.

"What haven't you got any patients?"

Our Boys And Girls On Active Service

(By Ottawa Observer)

That was a breath-taking story which the Navy released into last month about the Nazis trying to seal up Halifax harbor by sowing mines like beetles in a garden. The man on the minesweepers who cleared the channel of the dangerous mines had a tough job but did it thoroughly. Among them were quite a number of Westerners, who seem to take to the navy like a duck to water. One of the mechanics who baby's the Diesels on a minesweeper was Petty Officer Bill Sheard of Belkirk, Man., and Lieut. Rainsay Gravel of Gravelbourg, Sask. The latter said he found it "awful monotonous and would rather be on convoy work." Imagine, and him flirting with those deadly things all round his ship.

Saskatchewan will be looking forward to the new CWAG military band of 29 girls coming out during October among them being some natives of the prairies. The leader of the band is Sgt. Nadia Svarich, who for eight years taught school around Vegreville and Camrose, Alta. Teaching are also a pair of sisters, Eva and Elva Johnson of Loon Lake, Sask.

There were 25 bright, smart lads among a convoy which landed at the British port recently, all from the first class to graduate from Royal Roads Naval College on Vancouver Island. Soon they will be stationed at various Canadian and overseas. G. L. Hopkins of Swift Current, Sask., and A. B. Torris of Westbrook, Alta., were in the party. Hopkins has four brothers in the forces and his father is Lieut-Col. Hopkins, now back in Canada, who was a D.F.C. of the last war.

Some of our prairie sons are with the R.C.A.F. in the Aleutians, but maybe you know little about this chain of islands, the last of which is nearer the Japan mainland than the Canadian mainland. The big Jap naval base of Paramushiro is 700 miles from Attu, Alaska, believe it or not, is only 500 miles west of Hawaii. The lads have the toughest job in the world there. But they have some compensations. The PX stores run by the U.S. army are caterers to them. They get 10 packs of cigars for 50 cents, 20 packs of best razor blades for $1.00 and a cigarette lighter that cost you $10 here, they can buy for $2.50. But no beer, liquor or wine.

Here's a fighting family, the Leightons of Calgary. When daughter Mona joined up she made the sixth in the family on active service. Her dad is Staff Sgt. Syd. Leighton.

Newspapermen at Winnipeg found out that Mrs. Guy Simmonds, wife of the famous commander of the Canadian First Division in Italy, has real military background. Her grandfather was the first official commanding Fort Osborne Barracks in Winnipeg, one of the oldest of military establishments in the West.

A Saskatchewan farmer's daughter came in all the way from the north to join up at Regina, but was turned down because she gave her age as sixteen. Was she disappointed.

While haircuts of the men in the forces stay strictly the same, there was the problem of the CWAG's hairdos, many of whom thought they would like the Veronica Lake style. Loughing out from underneath their smart caps. But that was out and instead they get a smart "feather bob cut" which is pretty well standard.

MAIL IS DELIVERED A parcel and two letters finally caught up to Former Aircraftman Tom Brown of Healey Bar, York-shire, after travelling 50,000 miles in two years. He escaped internment at Singapore and the mail has travelled behind him since.

EMIGRATE TO BRITAIN Large scale emigration to Britain since war started has partly solved Eire's unemployment problem. During 1942 nearly 52,000 travel permits were issued, compared to 35,000 in 1941 and 26,000 in 1940.

The average distance of the sun from the earth is 92,900,000 miles.

Junior Farm Clubs

Annual National Competition To Be Held At Toronto, Nov. 21st

Boys' and Girls' farm club teams, winners of honours in their respective provinces, under the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club Work, will assemble from all parts of Canada at Toronto on November 21, 1943, to commence a week's program of the annual national competition. Because of the farm labour situation and the prospects of a late harvest, in some areas, the date set is three weeks later than in 1942. As usual, the contests include judging of live stock and seeds and oral examinations in the six major projects of dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, poultry, seed grain, and potatoes.

The oral examinations for all six projects will be conducted at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on November 22, but a change has been made with regard to the judging contests. Instead of taking the teams to various farms in the vicinity of Toronto and elsewhere for the judging classes, all the judging work will be done at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The main reasons for the change are to avoid use of motor transportation in moving the club teams from point to point, and in view of the lateness of the season, to provide comfortable surroundings for the contests. The teams will travel to Guelph by train. Following the completion of the actual contests on November 23, the remainder of the week will be spent on educational tours, with a visit to Ottawa on November 26.

PRAIRIE DOGS

A disease, the nature of which is still undetermined, is killing the prairie dogs of eastern Montana. Dr. W. J. Butler, state veterinarian, said the rodents are dying by the thousands and the condition is so bad he has been unable to find a live prairie dog with which to conduct experiments.

To Fit The Crime

Victims Of German Brutality Beaten Fitted To Punish Offenders

A general of the German elite guard was captured by Polish guerrillas in a "popular court" and then shot. The general was charged with responsibility for the execution of 100,000 Polish patriots.

Evidently it will be much more conducive to justice to permit the victims of German mass brutality to deal with its authors after the war than to for sentimental Americans or British to do so. And infinitely more conducive to justice than to turn the criminals over to a "reformed" Germany, as was done after the last war when of nearly 1,000 criminals only six were given even trifling sentences.—Kansas City Star.

MOTOMING IN BRITAIN

Within 20 years after the war, the number of motor cars on the roads will be 20 times greater than in 1939 and a constructive program must be inaugurated now else there will be "increasing slaughter and mutilation on the road," said Noel Baker, secretary of the War Transport Ministry.

It is estimated that a beach tree consumes about 80 quarts of water daily.

Canada Must Play A Part In Air Age Ahead

WINNIPEG. — "In the air age ahead Canada's outlook should embrace as many routes and services as may be required to maintain her position as the fourth largest trading nation in the world, and must see to it that Canadian air lines play their part in supplementing surface routes by providing essential global air services," C. H. Dickson, vice-president and general manager, Canadian Pacific Airlines, Montreal, told the Winnipeg Board of Trade here.

The pioneer Canadian flyer, now operating head of one of the world's most extensive airlines, was both optimistic and cautious in his word picture of post-war air developments.

With two-thirds of our total population in the east-west zone along the southern border, the existing air lines serve directly only one-third of our people. Another third can readily be reached by a planned system of feeder or local air lines extending to smaller manufacturing and agricultural industries. The system, based on key points of the present main lines services, would give Canadian business complete air transport service.

"No place in Canada would be more than an overnight flight to any other place, and our bonds of unity as a nation would be strengthened."

In his opinion, the airplane or glider would not in his lifetime supersede either trains or ships. Last year, he pointed out, Canadian railways carried 150,000,000 tons of freight while Canada's commercial airplanes carried 5,000 tons. This figure, multiplied a hundred-fold is still a small part of the total tonnage and would not include any bulk commodities, such as grain, lumber or coal.

DEVELOP NEW POTATO

SWEETWATER, B.C. — A new variety of potato produced by W. B. Simpson, farmer near this town in northeastern British Columbia, will be named Athlone. Canada's governor-general has given permission for use of his name.

The potato is an early white variety, oval in shape. It is a free, meaty cooker. Mr. Simpson developed the new variety in an effort to produce an early plant needed for the short summers in the area.

The governor-general requested that samples of the potato be sent to him.

SHORT OF MEN

Germany Registering 50-Year-Old Men For Military Service

LONDON. — The Germans now are registering 50-year-old men for military service—a stage they never reached in the First Great War—a spokesman for the ministry of economic warfare said.

Men of this class will not be called up at present, he added, but their registration gives plain evidence that Hitler now is scraping the bottom of his manpower reserve.

BURN DOCUMENTS

LONDON. — Diplomats accredited to the Vatican are burning confidential papers in fear that the Germans will violate papal territory when abandoning Rome, the Daily Mail said in a dispatch from Madrid.

JAPANESE WEAKNESS

Being Defeated In The Whole Solomon-New Guinea Area

WASHINGTON. — President Roosevelt said he detected signs of Japanese weakness in the whole Solomon islands-New Guinea area.

Mr. Roosevelt, who also is commander-in-chief of United States forces, briefly reviewed the war situation at a press-radio conference. He said the way the Japanese were being defeated and were retreating in the Solomons-New Guinea area, plus the destruction of great numbers of their transport barges, was proof, in his opinion, of the enemy's weakness in the entire region.

Continuing, Mr. Roosevelt expressed belief that more attention should be given to this factor. The barges of wood and steel, he said, are the only Japanese means of island-to-island transport and great numbers have been destroyed in the past 30 days by Allied air forces.

Some escort vessels also have been sunk, he added.

TO PROVIDE WORK

Men From Prairies May Be Taken To Lakehead Elevator

FORT WILLIAM. — Winter work for 125 farmers from the prairie provinces may be provided at Lakehead elevators where there is an acute shortage of labor.

Grain officials said the men would be recruited by elevator agents on the prairies, and if a plan under discussion is adopted the men would remain here until next spring. They would be engaged in laboring jobs at the elevators.

Under the plan, the men would be provided with free transportation by the federal government.

MAKES ESCAPE

Klopfer, South African commander at Tobruk who was captured in the fall of that city in June, 1942, has escaped and reached Allied lines after a 150-mile trek through enemy territory, Reuters news agency said in a Cairo dispatch. The dispatch said Gen. Klopfer escaped from Sulmona, 75 miles east of Rome.

Huge Demands For Food For The United Kingdom

TORONTO. — Huge demands for food for the United Kingdom, Europe and elsewhere mean that Canadians must use food carefully, and "we are not all co-operating" in bringing all possible information on proper use of food to the public," Dr. L. B. Pett, director of the pensions department's nutrition services, said here.

In an address prepared for delivery before the 24th annual meeting of the Health League of Canada here, Dr. Pett said the food rules prepared by nutrition services leave no margin for error, such as would be desirable, but in view of overseas food demands "we cannot provide a margin for error—we must insist on a careful use of food."

The right use of food had been widely publicized "just in time," because current demands for it were "making people in Ottawa very worried."

The food rules recently had been denounced as "thoroughly pernicious" because they advocated "slightly more food per person than some officials would like to make available to civilians," in view of needs elsewhere.

The nutrition division of the pensions department was established about two years ago, and though progress has been made in the nutritional field "we have still not achieved much real unification in this effort," said Dr. Pett.

WILL RETALIATE

Says Japanese Will Be Made To Pay For Beheading Allied Aviator

WASHINGTON. — The United States will call to account after the war the Japanese responsible for beheading an Allied aviator—an act which President Roosevelt said shows Japan's lack of civilization.

Asked for comment on the release by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters of a captured Japanese diary which described the killing, state department officials cited the note sent to Tokyo last April 12.

This note, transmitted through the Swiss government, protested the execution of some of the American fliers who fell into Japanese hands after the bombing of Tokyo. It warned the Japanese government that for this and any other "acts of criminal barbarity" against American prisoners the United States government "will visit upon the officers of the Japanese government responsible for such uncivilized and inhuman acts the punishment they deserve."

AVOIDING NAZIS

Thousands Of Frenchmen Are Living In Alps Or Pyrenees

ALGIERES. — Interior Minister Andre Philip of the French Committee of National Liberation said that on the basis of reports from the underground there are more than 200,000 Frenchmen living in "illegality" in the Alps or Pyrenees after fleeing to avoid deportation to forced labor in Germany. Forty thousand Frenchmen have been executed by the Germans up to March, 1943, he said.

PRaise FOR CANADA

LONDON. — Inspired by Canada's war effort, Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard devoted its entire editorial column to telling its readers of the Dominion and her great contribution which is "a source of pride and emulation of all the Allied powers."

Balkans May Be Meeting Ground For The Allies

LONDON. — The Balkans, a possible future meeting ground for victorious Soviet, British and American armies, began to shape up as an important subject for discussion at the forthcoming three-power conference in Moscow.

A Stockholm report that the American 7th army of Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton is in Italy preparing for a Balkan invasion, was carried by Reuters news agency.

In addition, disclosure of the make-up of the American and British missions to Moscow underscores both the Balkan and the military aspects.

In the delegations will be outstanding experts of the United States department of state and the British foreign office on central European affairs. On the American side will be H. Freeman Matthews, head of the European division of the state department, and on the British will be William Strang, who supervises the southern and central European and the French departments of the foreign office.

Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, military deputy secretary of the war cabinet who has accompanied Prime Minister Churchill to his conferences in the United States and Canada this year, will be a member of the British Moscow mission.

Speculation was heard in London that Gen. George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, might travel to Moscow with Secretary of State Cordell Hull as American kingpin in the military talks.

It has been known here for several days that military developments, moving ahead of schedule both in Russia and in Italy, had made necessary joint Anglo-American-Soviet military talks.

Also sitting as an American delegate will be W. Averell Harriman, newly named ambassador to Moscow. There was a possibility he might not present his credentials to the Kremlin until after the three-power meeting so that he could attend as a delegate rather than as an ambassador. It is expected here that Hull will be the chief American delegate, despite absence of a formal announcement from Washington, and it is known that the United States mission will include at least 10 others in addition to Harriman.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will head the British mission.

Making Plans For The Empire Air Conference

LONDON. — Arrangements for the forthcoming empire air conference are in the hands of Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft, Lord privy seal, and final plans are expected to be completed soon for the meetings which are to be held in London.

Representatives of Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India are scheduled to attend the consultations, out of which it is hoped will emerge an empire post-war commercial air policy to be used as a basis for discussions with the United States, Russia and other United Nations.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa, reached London for consultations with the dominions office. While here he will sit with the war cabinet.

The Evening Standard said it should not be assumed that Prime Minister Smuts is the first arrival for the conference of dominion representatives, mentioned in his speech by Prime Minister Churchill. That meeting is unlikely to be held until early next year, the standard said.

It was understood there is a good chance the South African government leader will visit the United States—and possibly also go to Canada—but his associates said nothing definite has been decided.

THE VITAL WEEKLIES

Well deserved tribute to the weekly press was made by Walter P. Zeller at the annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association in Toronto recently. Said the president of Zellers Limited.

"Few bear heavier responsibilities than you gentlemen. Your relation to the people you serve is most intimate. You survive because you are trusted. Your influence in the molding of public opinion has long been appraised. I firmly believe that upon you will rest in large measure the final attitude of a host of Canadians who ponder the post-war Canada."

This is strong praise, indeed, but it is deserved. The local newspaper, with its faithful chronicling of the news and aspirations of its community maintains intimate contact with its readers.

To such publications the building of a new bridge on Main Street, or a new church around the corner, is not some mere construction item to be dismissed in a single line of type, but a new community development affecting the lives and fortunes of the citizens it serves. Only the local editor, living in that community and depending on it for his livelihood, can really appraise such a development.

In the last fifty years, grievous casualties have been suffered by these Canadian weekly newspapers. Probably a third of them disappeared or merged with survivors. This is the inevitable price of increasing costs, but out of this period of test is developing a local weekly publication as modern and well printed as the biggest daily, and an institution firmly imbedded in the life of the community.—Financial Post.

THREATENED INFLATION

Speaking at the annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association held in Toronto recently, Donald Gordon, chairman of WPTB, was one of the chief speakers.

He warned that the "pressure on the price ceiling is rapidly becoming insupportable," with all the possible implications involved in the situation. In an effort to arouse the publishers to a sense of the real danger, Mr. Gordon continued:

"The pressures are real pressures and if the dam breaks, then God help us, because the flood waters will spread far and wide and bring endless suffering, misery and bitterness. The very fact that these flood waters have been dammed so far successfully will make the break-through all the more destructive. . . . Inflation is no imaginary condition. We have all the circumstances and pressures which create inflation right here now. We must fight tooth and nail to prevent these pressures being translated into a price inflation. We are in the greatest possible danger of falling to do so."

MOST HOUSEWIVES ARE CRIMINALS

One of the troubles with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is that it hasn't much experience in making laws, and is getting itself and the government into trouble thereby. One of the first things a township councillor learns is that a municipal by-law, to be enforced must be both reasonable and have behind it the force of public opinion. The man who decreed that there must be no cuffs on trousers and the man who decreed that a motor-truck owner must not give a ride to his own wife must first have said to himself "Public opinion be damned."

By and large, the public of Canada are vaguely aware that inflation is an evil which should be prevented. They can't see inflation as such a soul-consuming monster as Donald Gordon pictures it in his more eloquent moments, but they are, definitely, in favor of lower prices. Housewives always have been. But when it comes to rules regarding cuffs on pants, prohibition of an extra pair of pants with the Sunday suit or some of the whims of the services administrator, the public are sure that such rules are wrong.

One law which makes criminals of most housewives is that which says that if one has a surplus of a rationed food, she cannot give it, or lend it, or trade it, much less sell it, to a neighbor or friend who is short of that particular ration. The womenfolk have been trading, lending and selling their surplus rationed goods since rationing began and they are going to continue to do so. And Mrs. A, whose son frequently turns up from Camp Borden on leave (and with a pal) will insist on paying her friends for the butter she acquired for the soldiers' entertainment. On one recent Sunday morning, eighteen slices of toast, liberally spread with the old folks' butter rations for many meals, slid blithely down two young and healthy throats. Does Mrs. A intend not to have butter and jam for her boy when he comes to town? He will have all those things because one young soldier's mother is a criminal. The WPTB has made her one.

We think it rather mean of the big strong men in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, especially the enforcement division, to induce the altogether charming, Byrne Sanders, chief of the women's division, to do the explaining as to the why of the regulation. The best defence that Miss Sanders could find was that such trading of rations between neighbors would encourage black markets. As Grandma MacAvish used to say with Scottish forthrightness, "stuff and nonsense!" Actually such trading between honest people tends to prevent black markets. For Mrs. A would become a regular patron of a butter-legger rather than not have 27 pieces of toast, with plenty of butter, if her boy turns up with two pals on his next 48 hours.

In spite of the apologies of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, most housewives break the rationing laws more or less frequently, with untroubled consciences, and feel neither less patriotic nor less moral for doing so. If the enforcement division of the WPTB wants to make a round-up of criminals, they may be found among Red Cross workers, organizers of community welfare work, even among volunteers that the Board itself recruits to handle the issuing of ration books.

It is suggested that in future, a committee of run-of-mine parliamentarians be consulted as to what laws might or might not be reasonable and popular. And an intelligent municipal policeman—there are such—could give an expert opinion as to whether it would be enforceable.

If the price ceiling collapses—as Mr. Gordon fears it may—one important reason may be that it has been impaired in public favor by a number of the regulations which appear to the people as both unnecessary and absurd. The big battle may be in Ottawa on the wage front. But in the sewing circles in villages and cities, there is a growing opinion that some people in the price-control administration are plumb crazy.—The Printed Word.

SELECTIVE SERVICE LOSES TEST CASE

The Alberta appeal court at Calgary on Wednesday quashed the first conviction in Canada of a person charged with leaving his employment without permission from the National Selective Service officials.

The appellant, Sidney Vanatton, of Toronto, had been convicted and sentenced to six months in jail plus a fine of $100 by Magistrate Bond at Drumheller. The appeal court held he had never actually been employed as a coal miner at Drumheller, and thus could not be guilty of leaving his employment without permission.

BOND BUYERS ARE BUILDERS

Regular readers of the Press in Canada will have noted by now that the National War Finance Committee is placing a new emphasis on self-interest in the Fifth Victory Loan campaign. This is being done, of course, without discounting the importance of public war bond subscriptions in the quest of victory.

Honest judgment reveals that most of the bonds sold since the start of the war have been bought by citizens for reasons dictated by self-interest. There may have been many who were not particularly anxious to secure 3 per cent interest, but it seems fair to say that they bought in the knowledge that they were protecting themselves from the domination of predatory nations on the loose in Europe and the far east. But at this point in the war when victory seems to be so much nearer and peace time conditions are much nearer, more and more of us in Canada are realising the tightly bound relationship between our savings in war years and our well-being in the months and years which follow the day of peace.

Of course, from the very beginning of Canada's programme of public borrowing, the Minister of Finance and his colleagues who have been directing the sale of government securities have pointed to war savings as one of the salvations of post-war prosperity. Our manufacturers and other producers of consumer goods will not be able to build up staffs of employees and big payrolls unless the great mass of consumers shall have ready cash to buy what they need and want.

Happily a very large portion of Canadian people have a back-log of these savings, enough to create a tremendous market for post-war goods of all descriptions. But we should not overlook an obvious truism, that the greater the average war savings in Canada the greater will be the post-war market with all its attendant increase in jobs and wages.

Wise Canadians will put every available dollar into Fifth Victory Loan Bonds, not only for their own immediate post-war benefit, but as a good, country-wide co-operative move to ensure a long-term period of maximum employment and maximum enjoyment.

MINE OPERATORS SEE
THREAT TO GOVERNMENT'S
ANTI-INFLATION POLICY

The coal situation which has developed in Alberta and eastern British Columbia constitutes in the opinion of the Western Canada Bituminous Coal Operators' Association a serious challenge to the United Mine Workers to the government's control and anti-inflation policy, according to a brief submitted by C. Stubbs, secretary-commissioner of the association, to the federal government coal inquiry at Calgary, Saturday.

This brief was in answer to the demands of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, given to the commission on Friday afternoon.

In Defence—
This situation has been permitted to develop in defiance of government regulations, stated the operators' brief. It could not be laid at the door of the general agreement between operators and mine workers and supplementary agreements.

"We now face a situation in which it would appear that the U.M.W. have exhausted all the means provided by government regulations for upward adjustment and have taken the position of refusing to proceed under the procedure laid down by Dominion law."

"They have taken such steps as to indicate they now seek to force by other than legal means upward adjustment of all wages regardless of the ability of the operators to pay; the effect on government regulations; the war effort; the welfare of the people of Western Canada or upon the coal industry itself."

Forbid Increases—
After outlining communications which passed between the association and the United Mine Workers, the brief pointed out that government regulations prohibited employers from increasing wage rates or changing conditions without reference to the National War Labor Board.

"It therefore appears that this association has no authority under the regulations to make or even consider the upward adjustment of wage rates as demanded by the U.M.W.," stated the coal operators' brief.

"Even if this were not so, it should be pointed out that in the upward adjustments already made by the National War Labor Board no provision has been made by which the coal operator could secure himself in recovery of added costs."

Costs Are Up—
"Since the beginning of the war the costs of production have been substantially increased by the rise in the cost of machinery and supplies, by the cost-of-living bonus, by wage adjustments, and more recently during the current year by amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act and the granting of pay and one-half for overtime."

"These two latter items alone added to the cost of production from 10 to 15 cents per ton. The present subsidies do not correct the situation and there is no certainty as to the circumstances under which they will be granted or continued."

"The basic price obtained by the companies is but little higher than before the war, while the costs of production have become completely out of line with the selling price, which has been raised only nominally."

Will Need Help—
"At the conclusion of hostilities, if the present situation continues, the steam coal industry will only be able to exist with continuing government assistance."

"This will create an unfortunate situation not only from the point of view of the coal companies themselves, but from the point of view of the public as well. Moreover, the mines are being depleted of their more readily accessible coal and further development can only be done at increasing cost."

"If the industry is to face post-war conditions with any confidence it must be permitted to operate on a sound economic basis and be prepared to meet the post-war problems."

"The problems of the steam coal industry are entirely different from those of the domestic mines."

"Between 70 and 80 per cent of the output is purchased by the railways, the balance being used for bunkering at the coast, for export to the United States and by a few metal mines and other industries."

"The steam coal operators are determined to take whatever action is available to them so forestall the obvious danger of facing the post-war problem with depleted mines, depleted reserves, new market problems and a basic price for their product substantially less than the cost of production."

"This would lead not only to bankruptcy of the companies themselves, but to a very serious situation for their employees."

No Emergency—
The association's brief declared that the brief submitted by the United Mine Workers failed to show any alleged emergency now existing had adversely affected the earnings of the miners.

On the contrary, said the operators, opportunities for earnings had increased through steady working time from 140 to 160 per cent of the possible earnings of 1938, and this in face of absenteeism which had increased very considerably in the past year.—Drumheller Mail.

OTHER TARGETS

All the tanks, planes, guns and other combatant weapons, as well as the enlisted manpower, which makes up the superb fighting forces of the United Nations, would be of no avail in winning this or any war were it not for one thing—ammunition. In the years preceding the outbreak of war and even up to March of this year, when the manufacture and sale of sporting and commercial ammunition was placed under strict control by the government for essential users only, ammunition to the average Canadian meant mostly centre fire metallics, shot shells and .22's for hunting and target practice. Today ammunition means cartridges, shells, bombs, torpedoes, mines and a host of other material of an explosive nature with which our soldiers, sailors and airmen are enabled to wage both offensive and defensive warfare.

In September, 1939, Canada produced only one type of service or military ammunition. Today, at two government arsenals and in three wartime plants operated for the government by private industry, twenty-two types of small arms ammunition of nine different calibres, for rifles, revolvers and machine guns, are being manufactured and shipped to every fighting front in greater quantities in one month than Canada produced during the whole four years of the last war.

Millions of rounds of .32 cartridges are still being produced, but they are used to train the army, navy and air force recruits. Yes, and shot shells, too, which at this season of the year, in other times, found their targets in the woods and on the marshes, are fulfilling a more important role in the training of aerial and anti-aircraft gunners and as part of the propellant charge in mortars on the fighting fronts.

The hunting season is open, indeed, but fewer Canadians will aim at partridge, duck, moose or prairie chicken, for hunting today is a grim and earnest business and Canadians have raised their sights on other targets.

A doctor and a lawyer were arguing over their respective professions. "I don't say that all lawyers are crooks," said the doctor, "but you'll have to admit that the legal profession doesn't make angels of men."

"You're right," answered the lawyer, "you doctors certainly have the better of us there."

So Shocking
A true story is being told of a certain Ontario minister who is getting along in years and whose memory is not as good as it might be. He buried a woman member of his congregation and some time later when he met her daughter on the street he forgot about the funeral and asked: "How is your mother standing the heat?"

Standing naked before open graves, six French patriots were shot at the Guillotiere cemetery at Lyon. The men were taken to the scene of execution in a truck and shot as a train passed the cemetery, the driver blowing the horn of the vehicle to draw the attention of passengers to the fate of those who dare to resist the German will.

FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS

If Your Farm Work has Slackened for the Winter, You Are Needed Elsewhere in Essential Employment

Highly essential work—very important in Canada's war effort and for the welfare of the Nation—is threatened with shortages of workers. One of the few sources of men available for other high priority jobs is those men on the farm who will not be needed at home during the Fall and Winter. Heavy needs must be met in many lines—producing vitally essential forest products; in base metal and coal mining; in food production, in railway track maintenance. If you live on a farm and are not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, you are urged to answer this national appeal.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack season on the farm.

Please answer this vital call NOW.

DON'T BE A WALLFLOWER—
LEARN TO DANCE

Dance Night

There is a right way and a wrong way to dance and there is a right and wrong way to hold yourself while dancing. The illustration shows the correct position. A man should hold his partner directly in front of him, his right hand placed just below her left shoulder blade.

A girl should relax enough to follow readily, but she should keep her head up and avoid a dreamy pose. Everyone can dance. It is simply a case of being completely relaxed but not sloppily so. You must not be tense while dancing. If you are you will never be a good dancer.

A woman must cultivate a sense of balance and keep herself pliable when dancing. She can build up self-confidence by practicing new steps by herself.

Our 32-page booklet is full of all the basic dance steps with all the smart variations of popular dances like the rumba and the tango. But if you simply want to learn how to waltz, the booklet will help you not only with instructions but also with clear-cut diagrams.

He was a peculiarly unpleasant person; and when visiting the local cattle show he made himself unpopular by his loudly expressed claims to superior knowledge. "Aye," retorted old Sam quietly, "and the noisiest."

Skagway Pipe Line

Emergency Line Stretches A 1,000 Miles To Fairbanks

The U.S. army has revealed that an emergency gasoline pipe line stretching 1,000 miles from Skagway, Alaska, through the Yukon territory to Fairbanks has supplied thousands of gallons of gasoline to air bases in the interior of Alaska and Canada since its completion in January.

Although the line constructed by army engineers has been in use for nine months, no official announcement of its presence was made until recently.

"The Skagway - Fairbanks line really saved our bacon last winter," one airbase commander explained. "We had hundreds of planes going through and it would have been utterly impossible to haul enough gas in by trucks or to fly it in."

The strategic supply line is routed from Skagway through "Wh" horse to Fairbanks. Since the water route to Skagway is well protected through the inland passage the new line makes a safer, shorter haul for tankers and removes a great burden from the Alaska railroad, which formerly had to freight thousands of gallons of gasoline to Fairbanks.

The system will be operated for the army by the newly formed Standard Oil Company of Alaska on a dollar-a-year cost-plus basis.

CHILDREN'S FEARS

"Children should develop many cautions, but few fears," S. R. Laycock, Ph.D., educational psychologist at the University of Saskatchewan, and educational director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene (Canada), says in an article contributed to "Health," the publication of the Health League of Canada. Writing on the subject of "Children's Fears," Dr. Laycock says "Fears are a handicap in modern life."

Fears are not inherited, but home-grown, and result from experiences in home, school and community, according to the author. Some fears result from associations. Fears are built into some children by ghost stories and other frightening yarns. Many parents, Dr. Laycock regrets, deliberately build fears in their children to control them. It is a bad practice, he says, as bad as the practice of mothers using the father as a threat to control children.

Children are apt to "catch" the fears of their parents, too. Investigation has shown there is a definite correspondence between the fears of parents and their children.

Feelings of incompetence and weakness and of emotional insecurity are other causes of fear. If a child's basic needs for affection, belonging, independence, social approval, self-esteem and achievement are not met, he is likely to have fears.

Scolding, punishment or ridicule will not help children get over fears, Doctor Laycock says. He counsels parents to set an example of fearlessness, improving children's self-reliance and their skills and knowledge.

"Don't forget that fears are often a general symptom of a child's lack of emotional security at home," the author cautions. "Be sure his basic needs are being satisfied."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 17

JESUS AND THE SABBATH

Golden text: And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath. Mark 2:27.

Lesson: Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23-34.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 1.

Explanations and Comments
Keep the Sabbath Differently From Other Days, Exodus 20:8-11. The root meaning of the word rendered "hallowed" in verse 11 is to "separate"; the Sabbath is to be kept holy, separated from other days in the way it is spent.

Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work: note that this Fourth Commandment lays stress upon working as well as upon resting. There are many persons whose difficulty in keeping this commandment lies in the fact that they idle away the six days. The Sabbath is to be distinguished from other days by abstention from labor.

The seventh day is a Sabbath unto Jehovah thy God. A fine statement of the purpose of the Sabbath is given by Bishop McConnell in these words: "The Sabbath is the institution which gave God his chance to utter to men some of the fiercest revelations likely to be missed in the uproar of week-day life."

In it thou shalt not do any work (any unnecessary work) thou... nor thy cattle. During the French Revolution an attempt was made to substitute one day in ten, instead of one day in seven, as a day of rest and recreation, but the attempt was a failure. The needs of body, mind and spirit require one day of rest in seven.

Blessings That Follow the Honoring of the Sabbath, Isaiah 58:13, 14. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on any holy day (that is, if you turn away from what would profane the day); and... than... hath spoken it. The prophet Isaiah is sure that Sabbath-keeping will lead to prosperity, and he bases his plea for its observance upon its Godward aspect as an act of homage to Jehovah. That argument still stands. Long experience has verified the truth which Isaiah emphasizes, that there are few things which we can do that are really more rewarding than this one of turning the one day in seven to the high purposes for which it was intended. To render unto God his due will be to serve our own best and holiest interests.

A woman designed the new tuberculous X-ray camera that is now being used by the Minister of Health in London to simplify medical examinations for signs of the disease. Miss Kathleen Clarke, radiographer, was appealed by the extent of tuberculosis in Britain and began experimenting with a miniature camera. It took her three and a half years to complete the experiment. Patients now are photographed, the tiny films are projected on a screen. The doctors are then able to trace any symptoms of the disease at once.

Health And Education Program Forecast For Ontario

A physical fitness program linking health and education was forecast for Ontario by Premier Drew.

Addressing a reception for Dr. R. V. Vivian, provincial health minister, Mr. Drew said provincial health authorities would be "backed to the limit" in any scheme to check disease among young people in Ontario.

Premier Drew mentioned the appointment of C. A. Reynolds in connection with the Cadet Corps, Sea Cadets and physical training in and out of schools.

"From his report," he said, "we hope to extend this type of training and put it on a permanent basis."

Canada Was Invaded

Effects Of Glacial Invasion Still Evident In Many Points Of Canada

Among the great geological events in Canada's history were the Pleistocene glacial invasions. These occurred within comparatively recent times and the effects are still evident in the existence throughout the Dominion of countless lakes, rapids and water-falls. The rich soils of our agricultural regions in southern Ontario and the prairie provinces are also the direct result of glacial action.

The cause of this great ice invasion is still controversial but the fact is indisputable. The glaciers spread and retreated at least four times during the Pleistocene period of the last million years. There were rapid spells between some of these invasions, when the climate was warmer than at the present time. Warm water shells and fragments of mild climate trees found as fossils testify to these moderate interglacial climates. Such mementoes may be found in the Royal Ontario Museum.

Glaciers form in high land, and around the poles. It is believed that before the great ice invasion Canada stood much higher above sea level than now, perhaps 2,000 feet. The ice weighed down the earth's crust and then melted away. The sea came up into the Lake Ontario basin and extended far into the Ottawa river depression. Later when the land gradually rose the sea retreated to its present position.

ASSIST WAR PRISONERS

Throughout Canada, Canadian Red Cross Society branches have set up "prisoners of war committees." One of the duties of these committees is to establish friendly relations with next of kin of prisoners, and to assist them in any way possible.

Bean Jonathan

by J.B. Ryan

CHAPTER VI.

OUT of the darkness, as Jonathan approached the rear door of the Castle Theatre, came a subdued moan. He turned toward the sound, his fingers stealing about the handle of his sword. The sobbing groan came again, and Jonathan's eyes were riveted on a huddled shape in the gutter of the street.

Cautiously he stepped closer, then dropped to his knees beside the sprawling body. "Denys!" he cried. "Denys, what happened?"

There was no answer and he lifted the drooping head, straightened the cramped figure. The Frenchman's eyes were closed and mingled with the touch of cloth was a sticky feel that Jonathan recognized instantly as blood.

After the shock of horror, Jonathan's first thought was that Monsieur Denys had been attacked by footpads, followed perhaps by some of the hard-eyed men at the Golden Hind who had seen him leave with the money won at the gambling table. But the first object Jonathan encountered, tearing open the Frenchman's coat and doublet to learn the nature of his friend's wounds, was the purse itself, still plump and unopened.

Weakly, Denys resisted Jonathan's effort to slip an arm under his thin shoulders. "I am beyond the help of surgeons," he murmured, his voice was mortal faint. "My wounds are less than fatal. They—stabbed me in the chest. I—cannot—live."

Jonathan's hand found the Frenchman's pulse. It was there, but feeble. "You will have to find help," he said. "I will find help. She was not in the theatre."

"Denys," Jonathan said, his lips curved in a grimace. "Who stabbed you?"

There came a rasping sound as the dying man fought for enough strength to speak once more. "The servants of the—mildred—Denys."

The same man, Jonathan, whom we fought the other night."

"Something crashed on Jonathan's head but because of the darkness the Frenchman's club had been faulty. The blow raked through the crown of his wide hat, glancing his forehead-blade. He heaved himself to his feet. Came a ripping of cloth as he tore himself free from the men who surrounded him. He felt the second blow of the club, felt the seizure of fingers once more and jerked about to smash his fist into the face of the man clinging to his cloak. The fellow dropped to the cobblestones and Jonathan, breaking through the milling men, was darting away in the darkness.

"Stop thief!" A pistol cracked, sending a ball of lead close to the ear of the fugitive. Jonathan bent lower, reached the corner and increased his pace, heeding not the street after another until he finally shook off the pursuit.

He had some idea, now, of what had happened in the street before the Castle Theatre, for the man whom he had hit on the jaw had been the doorman of the playhouse. The doorman had seen the assassin jump on Monsieur Denys and had run to summon the watch. The doorman knew Jonathan and he had glimpsed the fugitive's face during their short struggle.

The inexorable case against Jonathan Hale took shape. His hat had been left behind at the scene of the killing. The word would be out for a hazy-eyed youth with close-cropped chestnut hair in the garb of a Puritan, clothes already stained with the blood of Denys. The patrons of the Golden Hind would remember the youth who had left the tavern with the Frenchman. The gamblers, like the doorman, would tell their stories—all of which would prove that he had knifed Denys in a dark street to obtain the gold he had helped the Frenchman win.

JONATHAN was in a section of the city hitherto unvisited, a maze of crooked streets and unpromising houses. He felt alone as he approached a grimy windowed inn. He must get under cover before daylight. But even this disquieted hostelry would be searched along with every tavern in London.

A figure sidled out of the shadows toward the hesitant youth. "A penny for a poor man, sir?"

Jonathan was startled. The words and voice—the grime on the face—were not new to him. He had seen and heard them before? It came to him in a flash. This was the man who had been accosted him on his arrival in London. But his previous meeting with the fellow had been in front of the Golden Hind—miles away. Had the dirty faced man trailed him in his flight across the city?

Jonathan caught one of the skinny arms and dragged the beggar back into the shadows before the inn. "What do you mean by following me?" he demanded, holding the man helpless against the wall of the building.

"I live around here—" The beggar squirmed in his grasp. "Let me go! I'm only a poor man!"

His shifty eyes steadied as he studied Jonathan's face. "Say, you're the young fellow who give me a shilling in front of the Golden Hind?"

Jonathan released his hold. "You live nearby?"

The grimy man nodded. "Why were you afraid of me, sir? I'm only a poor chimney sweep now forced to beg."

FOR a moment Jonathan examined the crafty, avaricious face, cunning and shrewd despite its sooty covering. Then he produced his purse, making sure that the wrinkled, mean old eyes observed his well-filled appearance, and extracted a gold crown.

"No woman would allow you to wear such poor garments, Master Sweep," said Jonathan. "So it is evident that you live alone. Will you let me spend the night with you in return for this bit of gold?"

Understanding leaped into the small eyes and the clay-ware hand closed over the crown. "I can accommodate you, sir. No one will think to look for you in the home of Matt Tucker."

The home of Tucker, the chimney sweep, was a smelly, one-roomed noel, untidy as absolute poverty and an utter disregard of cleanliness would make it. The sweep, without apology, indicated a pile of knotty blankets in the corner, and invited his guest to occupy the room's one makeshift bed.

It was Jonathan's desire to remain in London. Not only must he locate Mistress Anne, but there was also the score to settle with the nameless nobleman; he had promised Denys to visit retribution on the killer. How was he to find those two people while guarding against the chance of being captured himself by the King's men? If he could disguise himself and move in theatrical circles there was a possibility that he would discover Anne, but his lordship—

Jonathan Hale almost caught his breath at the inspired thought that came to him like a bolt from the blue.

"TUCKER!" he called, and the dozing sweep roused himself from the blankets into which he had crawled. "In the morning, Tucker, you will learn that I am wanted for robbery and murder. I am not guilty, but that is beside the point since you will not believe me anyhow. I continue to stay with you, two things will arise to profit you. You can report me and gain any small reward offered for my capture. Or you can keep me when my back is turned to possess yourself of my gold."

The chimney sweep shook his head. "I would neither rob you nor cause your arrest, good sir."

Jonathan smiled his diabolical smile. Tucker's grin was short-lived. The money will be soon spent, leaving you a homeless, poor, cold and starving because you can no longer climb chimneys. Will you accept a bargain that will take the ache out of your joints, the dirt out of your skin and leave you a rich man on the day we part company?"

Tucker hedged. "I have done some small pilferings in my day," he admitted. "But only to still the gnawing of an empty stomach. I will neither commit crime myself nor help you in any criminal activities."

"You need have nothing to fear," assured Jonathan. "From this time I shall take you to the best house or tavern in London. You are to be my servant. Nothing I do need cause you apprehension, and whenever you think I trifle with the law you are free to go to the authorities."

Still doubtful, Tucker inquired, "What do you want me to do?"

Jonathan tossed him a handful of sovereigns. "First, get that soot and dirt out of you and buy yourself some clean clothes. Then obtain for me a complete outfit of wearing apparel, silk and velvet, the trappings of a gentleman."

Tucker's close-set eyes studied him curiously. "You trust me with this gold?"

"We are both poor men, Master Sweep," said Jonathan. "Each needs the other to make these sovereigns multiply themselves. Be loyal to me and you shall not regret it."

The German air force's heaviest raid on London, on May 10, 1941, brought just under 450 tons of bombs. In its heaviest raid on Berlin to date, on August 23-24, the R.A.F. dropped 1,700 tons. On August 31-September 1, the R.A.F. dropped well over 1,000 tons of bombs on Berlin. On September 3-4 it dropped 1,000 tons in 30 minutes. ### Opals for October

Gen is Found in Australia, Hungary And Mexico

Opal is the gem for October. It is a great pity that for some years undeserved prejudices lessened the popularity of opal, one of the most beautiful gems. Perhaps its fragile structure has contributed to its reputation as an omen of ill luck. Sudden changes of temperature sometimes cause it to fracture.

Opal forms from a gelatinous silica mass in rock crevices. A multitude of cracks which develop in the jelly stage are filled with different opal. The variation of materials forming its structure causes the beautiful play of colour characteristic of the gem.

Precious opal is found in Hungary and Mexico, but Australia is its real home. It is considered the national gem of that country.
